—At eight o'clock Monday morning Alphonse Skinner, a well known young man of this city died. Deceased had for a long time been a sufferer from heart disease and dropsy, his sickness being of such a severe character as to render him for many months past a complete invalid. While he would at times have apparently frequent changes for the better, yet the insidious nature of his malady rendered his ultimate recovery an uncertain matter. Latterly the prevailing epidemic seems to have aggravated his complaint to such an extent as to bring about his demise as above stated.
