Arranging a Parade of Rodeo Acts

A gigantic parade of rodeo acts which will be even greater than the four mile long parade of the Blackhawk Encampment and the annual Ute Stampede rodeo last summer will feature the entertainment program of the opening day of the Ute Stampede Nephi, July 9 and 10.

Cowboys Cowgirls, cowboys and cowgirls, the Queen of the Ute Stampede, floats from Nephi and state industries and business houses and pet floats from the kiddies of Nephi will all have their proper divisions in the mammoth parade. Prizes will be given for pet floats.

The parade will form at the north portion of the city and will march to the South, doubling back through Main street.

Olbert Bailey is chairman of the committee to stage the parade and he is being assisted by A. B. Garbert, Grant B. Allen and A. L. Gibson. These members are urging all business houses to enter floats in the parade and are offering free tickets to the opening rodeo performance to every business house who enters a suitable float in the parade.

Rosemary Belliston Takes Lead As Contest for Queen Nears Conclusion

Miss Rosemary Belliston daughter of Mrs. J. L. Belliston, this week won the list of candidates for the honor of Queen of the Ute Stampede as the votes cast during the past week were counted by the committee.

The voting for queen will end at 6:30 P. M. Friday night and all people who have votes in their possession are asked to deposit them early Friday in order that they may get them in on the final count.

Following Miss Belliston in order as votes were tabulated the other candidates rank Wilma Allen, Grace Blackett, Marion Christensen and Lillian Wade.

An exceptionally large number of votes have been cast during the past week and the competition for the honor is very keen. All votes not in the ballot box in front of the county court house by 6:30 Friday evening will be disregarded by the committee.

Ask Public Aid For Housing

Residents of Nephi are asked to call Mrs. Grace Judd, phone 86 on or before next Thursday morning providing they have an extra room, an extra bed or sleeping space. There will be a great many people in Nephi during the three day celebration and housing facilities to take care of all of them are not available unless arrangements with private homes can be made.

Information needed includes name, address, phone number and the number of persons who can be accommodated and the amount desired for each person.

Housing facilities for 60 band members are being asked by the band committee of the Ute Stampede. The committee has been assigned the responsibility of housing the members of the band for the night and would appreciate the cooperation of any residents of Nephi who can give a bed to one night and would appreciate the cooperation of any residents of Nephi who can give a bed to one night.

Residents who can possibly do so are asked to call either Mrs. Ed V. Downs or Mrs. Leland Belliston immediately.

Mrs. Morgan Lami and son Gary spent last week visiting with friends at Salt Lake City and Ogden.

Mr. and Mrs. Hans Anderson were in Provo last Friday visiting at the homes of relatives.

Advices Fruit Thinning

The advisability of thinning fruit at all depends upon the market and the condition of the tree says Dr. A. L. Stark of the Utah State Agricultural college extension service. Under most conditions fruit of a larger size will demand a higher price than smaller sized fruit. By reducing the total number of fruits per tree early in the growing season an increase in the results to those remaining on the tree. The sooner the thinning of the fruit is done after the June drop the better the results as a rule.

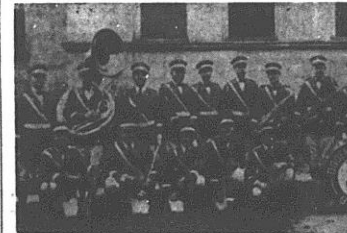

This year however there is present in some sections serious damage from hail. On trees that were not thinned earlier there is often enough fruit set to allow the removal of the fruits most injured by hail and still leave a good crop. Although the cost of thinning may seem high it should be remembered that the fruit must be picked at harvest and if not thinned earlier and that it costs more to handle a crop when harvesting than a thinned fruit. It also should be made clear that the material going into the cull fruit would make a larger first grade fruit if the culls were removed early in the season. If proper thinning is practiced no reduction in total yield results and the quality of the crop is greatly improved by the thinning operation.

In other fruit producing sections thinning is a standard operation as in pruning, harvesting and spraying in Utah. Many Utah growers have thinned their fruit for a number of years and are still doing it with full intentions to continue the practice. They claim it is a paying proposition and just as important as spraying.

The number of fruits removed in thinning will depend upon the vigor of the branch. Thinning a vigorous branch with healthy green leaves can mature to good size more fruit than a weaker aged branch. Each branch must be considered separately when making an average condition about 50 pounds per fruit in peaches and apples will be sufficient to produce a good crop. Thirty to forty leaves per fruit will produce a good sized fruit although somewhat smaller than when a larger number of leaves per fruit is left.

Take off the small, injured and irregular fruit first when thinning. If there are still many fruits left remove some of the normal specimens.
